FOR CONGRESS:

ASA P. GROVER,

OF OWEN COUNTY.

OUR CANDIDATE.—The late hour last night, at which we received the intelligence of the nomination at Lagrange yesterday, precludes us from entering at length upon the character and ability of the gentleman who has been chosen as the standard bearer of the only Union party in the country. Asa P. Grover has long been identified with the legislative history of Kentucky, having for a number of years represented the Owen Senatorial District in the State Senate. He is a lawyer fully the peer of any in this Congressional District, and, perhaps, is one of the best informed students of the Constitution in the State. Of clear and penetrating judgment, he never allows himself to become fixed in any opinion, until he has thoroughly sifted and weighed every grain of the question. A popular debater, he never wearies his audiences with dry philosophy or dull deduction. On the whole we do not know that a better selection could have been made. We are well pleased, and shall extend him a hearty and cordial support.

MASQUERADE BALL OF THE ORPHEUS SOCIETY ON MONDAY NIGHT.—The grand masquerade ball to be given by the Orpheus Society on Monday night next promises to be a very elegant affair. We have been favored with a peep behind the scenes, and we can assure our readers that a rich treat is in store for those who may be fortunate enough to procure tickets. The Society has spared neither pains nor expense to render the occasion worthy of the Carnival festivities of sunny Italy. It is whispered around among the knowing ones that President Johnson will be on hand to vindicate his vetoing power; that Gov. Bramlette will be present to prove to all unbelievers in the pardoning power that "mercy is not strained;" that Mayors Lithgow and Tomppert will probably settle their rival claims during the evening, and that many other worthies of local and of general note will grace the assembly, and personal and social foibles will find it difficult to get into a safe corner between the hours of eight and twelve. P. M. Tickets may be purchased until Friday of E. C. Bohne, Esq., at the Louisville Hotel, G. W. Smith, Esq., druggist, corner of Fifth and Market, and A. B. Mittler, Esq., of the firm of Conrad & Mittler, on Third Street. The high standing of these gentlemen, together with the well known character of the Orpheus Society, are sufficient guarantee that the highest decorum will characterize the entertainment.

DR. COLTON'S LECTURES AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—We were pleased to notice the large audience that attended the distinguished gentleman's lecture last night, and a large portion of it was composed of our most eminent scientific, professional, and literary gentlemen, all of whom expressed, in undisguised terms, their entire satisfaction. This evening at two o'clock the Doctor will deliver a free lecture to the ladies on that most important of all subjects—"How to Preserve Health." It is so seldom that we are visited by gentlemen of Doctor Colton's signal ability that our citizens will do themselves grievous wrong if they do not listen to and profit by his teachings. He belongs to that rare class who weigh their words well, and "know whereof they speak," before they utter them. We presume tonight he will continue his regular course.

SOIREE AT THE LOUISVILLE HOTEL.—The fete given by the Imperial Club at the Louisville Hotel last evening was an affair of unsurpassed elegance and sociality. The commodious dining saloon of the hotel was crowded by as select a company of ladies and gentlemen as we have ever seen congregated in Louisville. None but our very best society was represented there. General J. Bankhead Magruder and Brick Pomeroy, among other notables, graced the occasion with their presence. All enjoyed the charms of the waltz and quadrille until far past midnight, the only interruption being that caused by the critical and highly agreeable discussion of a choice repast. We cordially wish for the Imperial Club many such delightful reunions.

POLICE COURT—HON. E. S. CRAIG, JUDGE.—But a single case of drunkenness was before the court, that of J. P. Johnson, and he was discharged. Sarah Cade, disorderly conduct; discharged. Robert Thomas, carrying concealed a deadly weapon; held in $100 to answer. ☞ Hon. E. Hise, M. C., will please accept many thanks for a printed copy of his late Reconstruction speech in the National House of Representatives.

THE LAGRANGE CONVENTION

Mr. Mallory Withdraws His Name on the First Ballot.

Col. Asa P. Grover Nominated on the Fourth Ballot.

Special Correspondence Louisville Journal.

LAGRANGE, KY., Feb. 5, 1867.

The Democratic Convention to nominate a candidate for Congress for this District, assembled here to-day. The attendance of delegates was quite respectable, there being one hundred and four present.

After the first ballot, Hon Robert Mallory, in a very neat and patriotic speech, withdrew his name from before the convention. His speech was well received, and appeared to delight every one.

Three more ballots were had, on the last one of which—the race being narrowed down to Colonel Asa P. Grover, of Owen county, and Boyd Winchester, Esq., of your city—the former received the nomination by the following vote:

Grover	61
Winchester	43

Everything passed off as quietly as I have ever seen on any occasion of a similar character. I saw no drunkenness, heard of no difficulties, but observed that every man seemed to fully appreciate the grave importance of his action in this trying hour of our country's peril.

As soon as the convention was regularly organized, a committee on resolutions was appointed, and after retiring for a short while, returned and offered the following, which were unanimously adopted:

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That we reaffirm the platform adopted by the Democratic Convention of May 1st, 1866, as containing the true principles of our Constitutional Government.

That in the judgment of the democracy of the Fifth Congressional District of Kentucky, the only just basis of the restoration of the Federal Union is the unqualified recognition of the perfect equality of all the States in the Federal Constitution as the bond of Union.

That a universal amnesty, embracing the leaders of the late Confederate States, as well as the rank and file of its armies, is not only the wisest, but, in our judgment, the best policy that will restore perfect harmony and peace to the country.

That we cordially invite all who agree with the principles of this platform, to unite with us in our organization, in which past distinctions are ignored, and all its members stand upon a footing of perfect equality.

That we approve of the call of the State Sovereignty Society of the Democracy of the State of Ohio, for the call of a National Convention.

That we agree with them in selecting the 14th day of April, the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, as the time, and Louisville, Ky., as the place for said Convention, and we will attend any other selected place.

That the thanks of the nation are due the Hon. Elijah Hise, for his able and manly defense of State Rights, as lately espoused by him in the United States Congress.

Whereas, We believe that Andrew Johnson will need and ought to have the support of all true Democrats in the contest now carried on between the Executive and the Congress—for the preservation, on the part of the former, of at least what is left of the Constitution of our fathers, and that he will need and ought to have as much support as it is possible to give him in the House of Representatives of the Fortieth Congress; therefore,

Resolved, That we request the Legislature of Kentucky of both Houses of law appointing the 4th day of May as the time to elect members for the House of Representatives of the Fortieth Congress, and pass an act ordering an election for the ..... day of February, 1867, so that they may take their seats at the beginning of the session.

Resolved, That all conventions of the people agreeing with us, in the foregoing preamble and resolution, are requested to pass resolutions of like effect of the foregoing, and request their members of both Houses of the Kentucky Legislature, as we do, to vote for an act in accordance with the purposes hereinafore mentioned.

I regret that the limited time in which I am compelled to write debars me from sending you a more extended report.

OLDHAM.

JEFFERSON CRIMINAL COURT

Yesterday's Proceedings.

Commonwealth vs. George and Scott Bobards, indicted as accessories to the killing of Bell.

The accused were all discharged from custody.

NOLLE PROSEQUIES.

Nolle prosequies were entered in the following cases, and the prisoners discharged:

Commonwealth vs. Henry Buckner. Elijah Murray, George Lewis, Ed. Pool, and Cash Goins.

Commonwealth vs. Berthune & Farleigh. Nolle pros. as to Farleigh.

MURDER.

Commonwealth vs. John A. Mendel, indicted for the murder of his father, in this city, on the night of Christmas Eve last. The entire evening was spent in the endeavor to impannel a jury. At the usual hour the court adjourned to meet again this morning at the usual hour.

BRICK POMEROY'S LECTURE AT FRANKFORT.—Of this event the Yeoman says: "The hall of the House, in spite of the weather, was crowded Monday night to hear Brick Pomeroy's lecture on 'Northern Styles.' If anybody can give a description of this remarkable declamation we should like to see it in print. We were there and heard it and know what it was, though we can't put our impressions of it on paper. All we can say of it is that it was a lecture by 'Brick Pomeroy'—such a one as only he could write and delivered as only he could deliver it. He ranged at pleasure over the fields of sentiment, sarcasm, wit, and humor, embracing the sublime and the ridiculous, mixing all sorts of things in an agreeable confusion, and presenting a pleasing mental medley. Thought, research, eloquence, satire, and fun were wonderfully combined. Everybody was delighted, and the crowd unanimously voted him a BRICK."

THE OHIO RIVER BRIDGE.—In the New Albany City Council Monday night, as we learn from the Ledger, the petition of Hon. James Guthrie, President of the Ohio River Bridge Company, asking that city to subscribe $50,000 stock in the Company, was, for the present, laid upon the table. This action was the only course the Council could take in regard to the petition, inasmuch as the city charter contains an express provision against the Council subscribing stock in any incorporated company, except upon the petition of three-fourths of the tax payers of the city.

PERSONAL.—Cliff T. Wharton, Esq., of this city, has lately received the agency for the Southern Mutual Life Insurance Company in the counties of Henry, Shelby, and Oldham. He is now on a canvassing tour through those counties, and we take pleasure in commending him to the favor of the people. We couldn't bespeak success for a cleverer or more estimable gentleman.

ANOTHER BURGLARY.—The St. Joseph Saloon, on Seventh street, between Main and Market, was entered through a rear window, and a pistol and several articles of clothing stolen.

TWO ERAS IN A LIFE.

The Story of a Fallen Woman.

ERA THE FIRST.

Fifteen years ago Lucy W—— was the belle of that portion of the city in which she resided. The daughter of an honest, hard-working mechanic, who by frugality and plain living had amassed a sum sufficient to purchase the comfortable cottage in which he dwelt. Altogether, Mark W—— was looked upon by his neighbors as a man more than usually favored by fortune. He never contracted debts, and consequently stood in no fear of the officers of the law. He never spent his earnings at the rumshop, and therefore was steadily laying "something by for a rainy day." He indulged in no useless luxuries, and was slowly but surely building the foundation for an honestly-earned fortune. His probity passed into a proverb, and it was a common saying among those who best knew the man, "Mark W——'s word is as good as another man's bond." Lucy was his only child, and he valued her as the apple of his eye. His good wife was equally as ardent in her love and adoration of the beautiful angel that was sent to brighten and gladden their hearthstone.

And fifteen years ago Lucy W—— deserved all—and richly deserved, too—that might be written of her beauty. Her hair, when loosed from the comb that upheld it, fell almost to the floor in a shower of golden tresses—"golden in the sun and brown in the shade." Her skin was pure and white as the driven snow, and so transparent that the blue veins seen beneath it resembled those in the costliest marble. Her features were almost faultlessly perfect, not unlike the chiseled work of some rare old sculptor. Her large brown eyes, ever full of a soft, dreamy tenderness, were shaded by long, silken lashes. Her neck was swan-like in its perfectness, while the round, swelling bosom, the slender, tapering waist, the beautifully-rounded arms, the hands of which a queen might have envied, the small feet—fully realizing Sir John Suckling's famous picture—combined to make up a picture of such rare loveliness as is seldom looked upon more than once in a lifetime. We have not exaggerated in our description of Lucy W—— in her days of youth and innocence, for we are assured by one who knew her well that a lovelier girl never walked the streets of Louisville. No wonder her parents doated upon her. It was their pride to dress her in the best and finest money could procure, and therein consisted their only extravagance. From a very early age until her seventeenth year she was constantly kept at school, and when, at that age, she made her debut as the "finished" young lady in her circle, it may well be imagined that she was a proud, spoiled beauty.

"——— Beneath her petticoat
Like little mice peeped in and out"—

Lucy was by nature a coquette. She was conscious of her surpassing beauty, and was correspondingly vain. Fond of novel reading, she peopled her little world with ideal heroes, and had neither eye nor ear for the brawny young sons of toil who wooed a smile, a glance, or a tender word from the petted belle.

ERA THE SECOND.

We do not propose to follow the fortunes of Lucy through her great temptation, her fall, and her subsequent career of infamy. Such details would not prove instructive to our readers or be a pleasing task to us. We propose at this time to write of her only as we saw her last night upon the street and subsequently being carried to the jail in a state of drunken stupefaction. In the meanwhile it may not be amiss to state that her shameful fall caused the gray hairs of her parents to go down in sorrow to the grave.

After a mad career of infamy—beginning in one of the most aristocratic maisons de joie of our city, and ending in a habitual walking of the streets—bleared, bloated, and ragged—it required all of our confidence in the veracity of our informant, to make us credit the fact that the ill-favored hag before us was once the gloriously beautiful being he had pictured her. When we saw her last night, she was standing on the corner of Sixth and Walnut, surrounded by half-grown boys, negroes, and a few men who appeared to take a great delight in listening to her vulgarity and profanity. We had always thought that our contact with the world had pretty well familiarized our ears with every species of profanity, but as we listened for a moment to this degraded creature, we discovered that there was yet much for us to learn. Fortunately for the quiet of the neighborhood, Officer White was attracted to the spot by the boisterious noise of the crowd, and soon

"Linden saw another sight."

Seizing the vulgar virago, he started with her toward the jail, but it proved to be not so easy a job as he probably anticipated, for she showed unmistakable signs of fight. Seizing the officer by the lappel of the coat, all the while the most horrid oaths poured in a continuous stream from her throat. She clung to the coat with the desperate clutch of a drowning person, and "struck out from the shoulder" with the disengaged fist with all the science of an expert boxer. At length the officer "mastered the situation," but not until the treacherous cloth of which his coat was constructed gave way, damaging the garment considerably. Apparently exhausted by excitement, and obviously stupefied by the whisky she had imbibed, the unfortunate wretch was carried to jail, and the great iron door closed upon a spectacle that we sincerely wish never to behold again.

MR. HOUD'S COMPLIMENTARY BENEFIT.—This event, which transpires at the Academy of Music on Friday evening next, promises to be a brilliant success. The sale of reserved seats commenced yesterday, and a remarkably large number were disposed of. It is quite obvious already that the house will be filled to its utmost capacity. The programme for the occasion is replete with attractive features. By desire of the committee of arrangements Mr. Doud will appear in his great impersonation of Adam Trueman, in Anna Cora Mowatt's pleasing comedy of "Fashion." He will be assisted in the production of this fine play by the ablest members of the dramatic company now performing in New Albany. In addition, Mr. H. S. Wilson, the London buffo singer, of Crystal Palace fame, will volunteer a musical treatise upon the Paris Exposition, which is said to be the very essence of lyric fun.

☞ On Saturday night Major Harrington was elected Chief Director of the Frankfort fire department. It was decided to have a dress parade on the 22d of this month.

☞ The messengers of the Merchants' Union Express supplied us with the usual file of exchanges last night in good time.

THE TABLEAUX.—Masonic Temple was densely thronged by the generous-hearted and pleasure-loving last night, to witness the second entertainment of the Dickens Club. We earnestly hope that a like magnanimity may be shown by our people throughout the week. And we cannot entertain a doubt that such will be the case, for when the helpless widow and orphan appeal for charity our noble men and women find it not in their hearts to listen passively. If there is one in this community devoid of that charitable impulse now so essential to the comfort of the widowed and orphaned poor in the midst of us, we say let him emulate the gracious example of those who came out to the Temple last evening, or let him stand disgraced forever.

Practice makes perfect, and there was a gratifying verification of it last night. The several tableaux, groupings of statuary, etc., were lovlier in symmetry and ensemble, while a decided improvement was manifest in the dramatic pieces and the music. Altogether the exhibition was the richest of its character that has ever been presented to a Louisville audience. Every one present was rapt in appreciation. It could not have been and cannot be different with people of cultivated senses.

Still greater improvements will be made in the remaining entertainments. No exertion will be spared, no expedient neglected, to render them acceptable and worthy of the largest patronage—aside from the self-commending motive of help to the distressed. The programme for this evening is uncommonly attractive. In addition to a variety of the best representations in the series, that superb tableau vivant, "The Mistletoe Bough," will be reproduced. It is of itself sufficient inducement for lovers of the beautiful to spend an hour or two with the Dickens Club.

☞ The Merchants' Union Express Company, as we learn from the Cincinnati Commercial, has called for a further but final instalment of the capital stock, which will, when paid in, make the total assessment 25 per cent, and for which the certificates of stock will be issued. With what has already been paid in, it is represented that the company has become possessed of $1,000,000 real estate in the way of offices, stables, &c. There have been established 1,500 offices, and a transportation system of 13,000 miles. It is claimed in the circular of the company that no debts have been contracted, and that the final assessment is in great part for the purpose of establishing a safety fund, to place beyond any contingency the assurance of the company's responsibility, to cover any losses to which it may be exposed in the course of its business. Thus armed, the managers of the company profess a firm confidence in their ability to make a fair bid for a profitable share of the express business, and a determination to stand to their original pledges that the public shall have the benefits of a vigorous, enterprising competition.

COMPENSATION FOR ENLISTED SLAVES—JEFFERSON COUNTY APPLICANTS.—The Frankfort Commonwealth has begun the publication of the names of slave-owners who have applied for compensation. In the list we find the following Jefferson county names, with the number of enlisted contrabands for whom pay is claimed: H. C. Middleton, 3; Isaac Everett, 1; W. W. Foreman, 1; Lawrence Young, 10; J. W. Kalfus, 1; George McKinney, 1; Martin A. Curd, 1; Alex. P. Farnsley, 1; Jas. W. Graham, 2; Nancy Vacaro, 1; Richard Cox, 1; Jamerson Bayne, 1; Wm. J. Anderson, 1; John B. Bland, 1; John J. Moore, 1; Andrew J. Ballard, 2; Edwin Bryant, 1; Thos. A. Marshall, 1; Wm. Huggins, 1; Jas. G. Balee, 1; Jas. Anderson, 1; Patsy Estill, 2; Jas. M. Maury, 1; Jas. Wood, 1; Henry C. Thomas, 1; Jas. M. Bennett, 1; Mary E. Miller, 1; Andrew Low, 1; Paschal Wilhoit, 1; John M. Barrett, 3.

HISTORY OF MORGAN'S CAVALRY.—This much-talked of book, by Basil W. Duke, is probably the most correct of all the descriptions given of this famous partisan leader and his dashing cavalry. It forms an elegant octavo volume of 580 pages, and is ornamented with a fine steel engraving of Morgan, besides numerous maps and plans. The admirers of John Morgan will find in this work an interesting, though, of course, colored account of the various exploits that gave him his fame. For sale by C. T. Dearing, No. 321 Third street.

BURGLARY.—Last night the clothing store of McGill & Mullen, on Fourth street, between Main and Market, was entered by burglars, and goods to the amount of about four hundred dollars were stolen. They gained an entrance over an iron gate seven feet high in front of the recess glass door on Fourth street. They then passed a hook through a broken pane of glass, and raised the bolt in the sill of the door. They then pushed open the folding doors, entered the store and made such selections as suited them, after which they made their escape from the rear of the building.

☞ Brick Pomeroy, of humorous and democratic fame, walked into our sanctum last evening and dispensed his genialities for a few minutes. He appeared the very picture of good health and cheerful as a lark. Long may he be so blessed, for he is engaged in one of the noblest of causes—lecturing for the pecuniary relief of the Southern poor—and it requires extra physique to endure the fatigue of travel and declamation thus imposed upon him. Brick starts this evening for Evansville, Ind., where he lectures on Friday night.

VALEDICTORY LECTURE.—The thirteenth regular commencement of the Medical Department of the University of Louisville occurs at 7½ o'clock this evening. Prof. L. J. Frazee has been selected to deliver the valedictory address. The exercises take place in the hall of the University. It will accommodate a large number of persons, and as a general invitation is extended to the public, we presume the hall will be crowded.

☞ Tacitus says: "In the early ages man lived a life of innocence and simplicity." When was that blissful period? Our reading teaches us that the first man and woman created were driven from Eden for committing a sin, and the first man born in the world murdered the second. At what period in the world's history, then, could Tacitus' age of innocence and simplicity have begun?

GOING HOME.—Yesterday morning, at the Nashville Depot, we saw three young women, who were driven from Tennessee several years ago by the hard fortune of war, applying for passes to return to their homes. They have been living in Indiana during their exile.

☞ Messenger Robinson, of Adams Express, has our thanks for newspaper favors.

☞ Dr. J. B. Gentry, formerly of Frankfort, Kentucky, is on a professional visit to Nashville.

DASTARDLY OUTRAGE.

Bold Attempt at Assassination.

On Sunday evening last, about twilight, as Dr. James E. Manlove, a well-known citizen and physician of Nashville, was riding by the Barracks, along the Hyde's Ferry Road, coming from the ferry, in company with Mr. Michael Williams, of that city, his horse was shot under him, by a soldier named John Leonard, of company G, 5th United States cavalry, at the time of the shooting absolutely on guard at the barracks. The Banner treats the outrage as one of the results of Brownlow's policy of pardoning murderers.

CITY ITEMS.

☞ Where shall I go? Go to Stowe's Gallery and secure a superior picture. Remember the location, corner of Fourth and Green streets.

LOUISVILLE TRANSFER COMPANY.—The attention of the public is called to the sale of the unclaimed freight and packages of the Louisville Transfer Company on Thursday morning, Feb. 7, 1867, at 10 o'clock, at the auction-rooms of Messrs. S. P. Whaley & Co., on Main street, between Seventh and Eighth.

ODD-FELLOWS CONCERT.—The attention of the public is called to the advertisement in another column of a concert under the auspices of the Odd-fellows of this city, the proceeds of which are for the relief of the widows and orphans of the South. As will be seen from the advertisement, superior musical talent has been secured, and this concert will doubtless prove a rich treat to the citizens of Louisville, aside from the noble purpose of contributing to this worthy object, which appeals to the generous sympathy of all.

NEW MUSIC.—D. P. Faulds, Esq., the enterprising publisher, has laid upon our table two of his latest issues of instrumental music. Their titles are: "Fast Train Galop," composed by T. E. Bagley; "Butterfly," from a choice selection by eminent composers. Both are exquisite gems, and are sure to find their way into the hands of tasteful musicians.
